

Nomura Global Dynamic Bond Fund - Class MYR

September 2024

Fund Commentary and Strategy

During the month, the Fund was mainly invested in the Target Fund.

Commentary from the Target Fund Manager

The Class MYR returned -3.13% in September.

Financials exposures contributed approximately half of the Fund's overall performance in September.

Mexico was the largest of the EM sovereign contributors, adding approximately 20bps. South Africa, Egypt, Bahrain and our Eastern European exposures were also in firmly positive territory.

Convertibles also contributed an outsized 35bps. Amongst the biggest contributors were a number of Chinese domestically-focused names – the related equity prices took off from depressed valuations as the government announced stimulus measures. Call option structures on German Bunds also contributed a few basis points, whilst CDS-based hedging detracted just over 10bps.

Our main physical portfolio allocations are broadly unchanged from where they have been in recent months, other than for some profit-taking in Financials and rotation within our Convertibles allocations. These allocations will benefit as rates are steadily cut and the economy cools.

If anything, there are areas in the Emerging Markets where we would like to increase exposure – South Africa and Eastern Europe amongst them. The former has experienced remarkable stability through a period of political volatility and offers close to 1% of carry per month to offset any volatility in yields. The latter offers yield pick-up versus some Peripheral Eurozone members with similar credit ratings. Debt loads are lower, however, and a path to EU membership lies ahead, offering the potential for capital returns.
