

Nomura Global Multi-Theme Equity Fund - USD Class
Fund Commentary and Strategy

During the month, the Fund was mainly invested in the Target Fund.

Commentary from the Target Fund Manager

The US economy continues to demonstrate underlying resilience despite the impact of heightened tensions in the Middle East. April CPI rose 3.8% year-on-year, accelerating from 3.3% in March, while real personal consumption edged up 0.1% month-on-month in April as consumers drew down savings to sustain spending. The labour market remained firm, with non-farm payrolls adding 115,000 jobs in April, maintaining a run of solid double-digit gains. Looking ahead, while the Middle East situation poses ongoing risks to both growth and prices, we expect the economy to avoid a material slowdown. Against a backdrop of upward pressure on inflation from elevated energy prices, the number of FOMC participants supporting rate cuts within the year has diminished, and we continue to monitor developments in the Middle East and their implications for monetary policy closely.

Corporate earnings for Q1 2026 have delivered profit growth above the five-year average, and consensus estimates for Q2 have been revised upward since the end of March. That said, we remain attentive to the potential impact of rising oil prices on inflation expectations, the growth outlook, and central bank policy responses globally. Over the longer term, we see broad-based productivity gains from the adoption of AI technologies across industries. Within the portfolio, we continue to focus on companies whose medium-to-long-term strategic positioning supports durable growth, with a particular emphasis on names where current valuations do not yet fully reflect that growth potential.

USD Class continued its outperformance over the MSCI ACWI Index by 322 bps in May, recording 8.43% against a rise of 5.21% in the benchmark.

Looking at style trends, Growth outperformed Value this month by 4.05% using MSCI ACWI Value/Growth figures including dividends. In terms of size, Large Cap continued its outperformance over Mid and Small Caps using MSCI ACWI Large/Mid/Small Cap figures including dividends.

Attribution analysis showed that this month's performance consisted of positive sector allocation and stock selection effects. Sector allocation contributed the most from an overweight position in Information Technology, alongside underweight positions in Financials and Consumer Staples. As for stock selection, positioning in Information Technology was the sole positive contributor, outperforming all other sectors.

Main contributors to performance included overweight positions in memory chip maker Micron Technology, shale oil and gas producer Devon Energy, cloud monitoring platform Datadog, flash storage solutions provider SanDisk, and semiconductor connectivity specialist Astera Labs. Notable detractors included overweight positions in natural gas exploration company Coterra Energy, defense and power systems conglomerate Mitsubishi Heavy Industries, and auto parts retailer O'Reilly Automotive, alongside non-holdings of consumer electronics giant Apple and memory semiconductor manufacturer SK Hynix.

Theme Spotlight
[Investment Theme: Global Aging]

One of the fund's core growth themes is "Global Aging," where we see significant long-term opportunity as rapid global demographic aging drives expansion of the healthcare and elderly care services market. Within the broader healthcare industry, we are also witnessing a paradigm shift away from traditional population-level statistical approaches toward "precision medicine" — an individualised model of care informed by patient-specific data. Against this backdrop, we are particularly focused on areas such as molecular targeted therapies and immunotherapy, where innovation is accelerating.

[Featured Company: Natera]

Natera is a US biotechnology company and a key holding within our Aging Population theme. The company provides testing services that analyse cell-free DNA (cfDNA) — fragments of DNA released into the bloodstream through cell death — enabling more personalised clinical decision-making. Because cfDNA testing is minimally invasive, its applications are expanding rapidly across cancer recurrence monitoring, early detection, and prenatal screening. As a leading player in this growing field, we expect Natera to deliver sustained earnings growth over the medium-to-long term, underpinned by broadening demand for its testing capabilities.
